

HISTORY AND POLITICAL SCIENCE B.A.

Program Learning Outcomes

1. Students will assess the history of the United States and identify their roles as active citizens in our country's political institutions.
2. Students will apply the qualitative and/or quantitative research methods, effectively using primary and secondary sources, interviews, libraries, and databases (as appropriate).
3. Students will demonstrate their communication skills by organizing and explaining their thoughts clearly and coherently both orally and in writing.
4. Students will develop critical historical and political analysis, including incorporating diverse voices into existing frameworks of historical and political theory.
5. Students will integrate coursework with their Christian faith by applying a biblical lens to historical and political analysis.
